NIGHT FOOTBALL

With the start of work on the installation of a floodlight illumination system, Reilly field within a few days will be the first high school athletic field in Ohio equipped for night football. The city's public school system will be adopting a plan that has been experimented with and found a success.

The cost of the project will be born by the Salem High School Athletic association and will approximate $3,100. The association plans to realize this amount from its first four games of the after-dark series, and with proper backing from its fans here, there is no doubt this can be done.

Only one other eastern high school field has adopted the night football plan. There it has proved an overwhelming success; here it should prove to be even greater for Salem is noted for the backing it gives all its enterprises, athletic or otherwise.

IMPERIALISM

La Nacion, of Buenos Aires, is very frank in expressing its doubt that Secretary of State Stimson's explanation, that lack of funds was the sole reason for the refusal of the United States to send delegates to the Congress of Penal Sciences to be held there, is the true one. It is equally frank in expressing its belief that the secretary's explanation is simply avaricious diplomatic camouflage to cover this country's displeasure over many discourtesies shown our country by Argentina.

Following an editorial run some days ago, it published an editorial Sunday in which, far from criticizing the secretary's attitude, it holds his position not only justified, but also laudable in view of the Argentine attitude toward the United States, notably in the course of Argentina's delegates at Pan-American conferences and at other gatherings, crying out against "imperialism" on our part.

Boldly attacking the foreign policy of Argentina which it holds has been one of inexcusable silence and isolation for the past year, which has given for offense not only by the United States but also by several other countries, and expressing the belief that it is indispensable that this displeasure be removed, La Nacion very sensibly says:

"If there is one thing to be inferred from the present Argentine government's foreign policy, it is the foolish belief that we are threatened by a fantastic policy of imperialism which exists only in the minds of a few agitators. The fear of this imperialism appears to induce President Frigeyen to take sides in an illusory rivalry between the two great Anglo-Saxon powers. There exists no important political rivalry between Great Britain and the United States, and even if it did exist, it would be childish for us to try to exploit such rivalry for our own benefit."

"There does not exist and could not exist any policy of imperialism which could threaten us. Argentina's horizons are clear and promising, and friendship with all other nations is the only foreign policy which any Argentine government has any right to adopt."

It is pleasing to note that a paper of La Nacion's standing, which may be considered one of the foremost papers, if not the foremost paper, of Argentina, thus shatters the "imperialism" bogey which has so frequently been raised in recent years to arouse mistrust of this country. The hypocrisy of those uttering the cry of "imperialism" is so manifest that none should fail to recognize it, yet the cry goes on to arouse antagonism against us. Those of other lands making use of it are no more sincere than are the enemies of our government were at home who employed it. Real Americans appreciate the insincerity of the cry, no matter where or when made, but it is good to have a paper in the land of an offending government set out the littleness of its worth.

What Others Say

AN OLD COLLEGE PRACTICE

The practice of earning one's way through college is just about as old in America as are college themselves. Someone who has been poring over Harvard college records has discovered that Zachariah Bridgen, who entered as freshman in 1657, when but 14 years old, earned his way at least in part by "ringing the bell and waiting."

The bureau of education at Washington refers to this as the first instance on record of a student working his way; but Harvard was 21 years old when young Bridgen entered, and as students were not as a rule wealthy in those days, the chances are altogether in favor of the presumption that in every one of those 21 years there were students working to pay their way, whether the work was done for the college itself, as in Bridgen's case, or for some private employer.

If the "ringing" of the bell was not provided for in the way from the start, then the probability is that either some member of the little faculty, or the president himself, had that as a part of his college duties. Harvard, in her early years, went through about the same experiences as American colleges founded in later times. The most difficult thing to prove, in this line, would be that any American college, in any year of its existence, has been without students who had to work at odd hours to help meet their expenses.—Columbus Dispatch.

KEEP RESISTANCE TO ALL DISEASE AT PAR

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

(United States Senator from New York)

Half the ill of the human family today abuse or neglect of the digestive organs. Dyspepsia and constipation are the most frequent effects of such misuse.

Just because the bowels move rather freely once a day, is no sure sign of the absence of constipation. This movement may be a delayed one, the material expelled being waste which should have passed away two days before.

Lowered vitality, which may be the effect of wrong eating, late hours, worry or continued and excessive fatigue, sometimes results in deficient activity in the muscle walls of the intestine. The general muscular tone falls below par. Naturally the digestive and eliminative organs depending on muscular action, are less vigorous than they should be.

This state of affairs may account for the beginning of the constipation, but when the intestine fills up with the undigested materials fermentation takes place. With fermentation and decay, further complications are to be expected. Poisonous toxins develop and these are eager to attack the system and undermine the health.

Almost always an acute infection is founded on a constipated condition. If you are in prime health, you are unlikely to "take" diseases. Your powers of resistance are high and you can snap your fingers at sickness.

In dealing with constipation, the effect, we must think first of the causes for its presence. By better living, better hygiene, standard and better choice of foods, constipation need not be feared. But its correction takes time.

To get rid of the dangerous accumulation in the lower bowel, it may be necessary to take a cathartic or laxative. Needless to say, such treatment does not "cure" the constipation. All it does is to clear out that particular cargo of offensive material.

But that is the most desirable, particularly if you have a cold, sore throat, headache, or other evidence of acute infection.

Sprays and gargles and pills and powders may give temporary relief to the acute trouble, but their effect is only momentary.

U. S. CAPITAL IN BERLIN WORRIES INDUSTRIALISTS

German Industry Faces Serious Question In Foreign Finance

Washington, Oct. 9. — The question of the control of German industry by non-resident capital, particularly American, has become a question widely discussed in Berlin and other industrial cities of that country, according to information from the Commerce Department from Assistant Commercial Attache Douglas Miller.

"With increased American interest in investment in Germany the question of control from within or without the country has come to the front," Miller said.

"There are no legislative provisions in German law excluding foreigners from owning shares in any specific industries or denying foreign stockholders of their voting rights. Foreign stockholders in existing companies cannot be excluded from subscribing to new issues of shares, and many exercise voting rights in the same way as German nationals, although there is no guaranty that legislation may not alter this situation in the future."

Plural Voting Shares

As a matter of fact, practice, however, Miller pointed out, foreign purchasers of German securities often have been deprived of the opportunities of controlling German companies through various devices.

The issue of plural voting shares has been common in Germany, particularly in recent years. The case of the German dye trust is an outstanding example. Certain preference shares were issued carrying a hundred times the voting power of ordinary shares and reserved to the management and persons closely affiliated with them. This was done to prevent control of the company getting away from the present management.

It also was directed not only against foreigners but also against other groups outside the company in Germany itself, according to Miller.

The issue of fractional voting, or non-voting shares is not common in Germany, Miller said. "Usually, ordinary shares are given one vote as a minimum, while certain classes of preference shares have plural votes. In the case of one German company the preference shares have 12 times the voting power of the ordinary shares, and voting control was secured by holding 3,000,000 marks worth of preference shares voted as 36,000,000 marks."

"As far as German law is concerned, the rights of foreign minority stockholders are thus placed at a disadvantage, although in regard to voting their rights are identical with those of national minority stockholders."

Methods of Defense

"Other methods of defense against the control of German industry by foreigners have been public campaigns against foreign interest invading German industries and unofficial pressure through banks and other channels. There is a very decided public opinion against what is called 'unbefremdung'—allowing control of German industry to pass into foreign hands."

"Up to this time this feeling has not found expression in the form of legislative enactments, particularly because provisions of the Versailles treaty have prevented Germany from placing nations of the allied countries at a disadvantage."

"German industry is very closely knit and forms a rather effective block when brought into contact with foreign concerns. Thus the banks, newspapers, and trade associations can bring pressure upon the individual companies which are likely to grant control to foreigners."

se Planes To Curb Mosquito Breeding

Indianapolis, Oct. 9.—How mosquitoes to larvae are hatched in their breeding places by sweeping airplanes will be shown by the United States Public Health Service and the Universal Cinema Company of Indianapolis, producers of public health films.

The new film will introduce to the U. S. Public Health Service. The voluntary methods for mosquito extermination recently developed by film is to be used in inaugurating a world-wide campaign for malaria by applying recent scientific discoveries. The film will be distributed largely through state and county health departments in the malarial regions of the United States and through governmental health departments of malaria infested countries throughout the world.

The discharge of Paris green dust clouds from land guns and from the air to destroy the pests will be a feature of the picture. It will also show better and cheaper methods for mosquito-proofing houses which the government service has developed. Microscopic studies of the mosquito's life cycle and how the mosquito spreads disease.

Experiments have indicated that the time and expense involved in treating mosquito breeding areas by the new methods can be reduced to a small fraction of the former expenditure.

Paris—The time-honored, old gray walls of the Sorbonne, the University of Paris, will soon have with the White of the airplane's propeller. A chair of aviation has just been founded, which means a radical innovation in the old institution's curriculum.

Whales Are Faced With Extinction

London, Oct. 9.—Whales are being faced with extinction, it is feared, on account of the enterprise of Norwegian whalers.

The new vessels built by Norway can be used to hunt whales through hitherto inaccessible waters, particularly in the Ross and Wedell islands in the Antarctic.

Last year no fewer than 5,000 whales were killed in this sanctuary. Since then the boom in Norwegian whaling has caused the building of new vessels and it is expected that this year's catch will reach 11,000.

It will require a good catch to justify the amount of new capital that has been sunk in the business.

The fleet which will sail this year will consist of 37 floating factories and 7,000 skilled men are employed in them, everyone an experienced whaler. All of the men are Norwegians and even the Japanese whaling companies operating in the North Pacific have to go to Norway for their harpooners and highly-skilled men.

The number of whales has steadily decreased for a century or more, but a fleet like this let loose among them with the very latest equipment will kill as many in a single voyage as a big fleet of barque-rigged whalers, running into hundreds, did in years.

A new "Discovery" is being built by the British Colonies for the purpose of investigating the breeding and feeding habits of whales, still a mystery, and it is hoped that the work will provide sufficient information to pass protective laws. Otherwise the extermination of whales may only be a question of time.

AKRON TO TAKE FIRST PLACE AS DIRIGIBLE CITY

Big Hangar Is Rapidly Nearing Completion At Ohio Port

Akron, O., 9.—Although separated by thousands of miles of land and water, two cities of the world are in a sense joined in a friendly "brotherhood of the air," and working hand in hand in the task of absolutely conquering the skies with lighter-than-air crafts.

These two cities of air exploration, so joined, are Friedrichshafen, the home port of the famous globe-circling Graf Zeppelin in Germany, and Akron, America's "dirigible city."

In The Limelight

Only since the visit of the Graf during the latter part of August have the activities of America's "dirigible city" come into the limelight of public attention. In a sense Akron owes much of its prominence today to the world flight of the German dirigible, which centered the attention of an air-minded world on the amazing possibilities of lighter-than-air craft and brought forth the query: Where is America in this phase of aeronautics.

Unbeknown to the average person, Akron, which has popularly been conceived of as only a "tire city," has been virtually the center of the lighter-than-air craft work in this country for more than 20 years.

As this "Zeppelin city" today is being built the largest structure of its kind in the world for the housing of two navy dirigibles, both of which will be nearly twice as large as the monster Graf of across the seas.

In 1910, when flying by either heavier-than-air or lighter-than-air crafts was still considered by the masses as the crazy dream of a fanatic, experimenters were plodding away with the study of free balloons and with only an indefinite and hazy vision of the future of lighter-than-air crafts.

Three years later an Akron balloon brought recognition to the United States in an international balloon race flying out of Paris.

Proof Of Interest

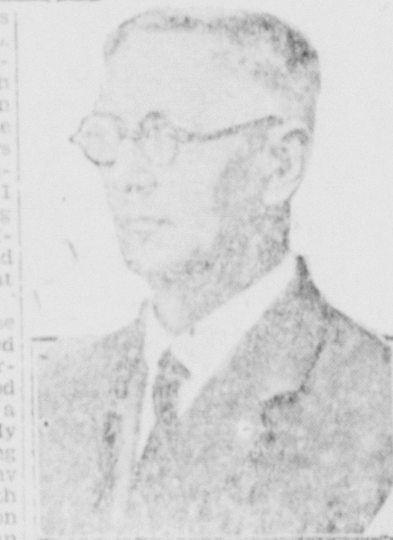

Proof of Akron's interest and to some extent, her faith, in lighter-than-air crafts, was the construction of a flying field at Winnafool Lake near Akron, where a large airship hangar was built.

Since those pioneering days of free balloons, more than 1,000 balloons and more than 100 airships have been built in Akron. Outstanding among the airships are the "series" of "baby blimps" that have been constructed by the Goodyear

Owa-Ton-Na Puts an End to Getting Up Nights

My Nerves and Stomach Have Improved Wonderfully Since Taking This Fine Old Indian Remedy

Among the many who endorse this fine old Indian Remedy is Mr. H. L. Davis, 431 Merriman Pl., S. E. Canton, Ohio who has suffered with conditions which are quite often obstinate and hard to overcome. He says: "For the past five or six years I have suffered with stomach, kidney, liver and bladder disorders. I spent a great deal of money trying to find relief and tried so many different remedies, medicines and treatments that I hardly knew what else to do."

MR. H. L. DAVIS

"You can imagine my surprise when even the first bottle showed me that Owa-Ton-Na acted differently. My stomach felt better, food agreed with me. I could feel a change in my whole system. My appetite improved, gas and bloating spells disappeared. I don't have any trouble with dizziness now or with headaches. My bladder condition has improved wonderfully and I can go to bed at night and get a good night's sleep. Pains in my joints are gone and my nerves are much better. Although I have tried many different things for relief, none of them has ever given me near the results that Owa-Ton-Na has. I gladly recommend this fine old Indian Remedy to other sufferers."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

If a room is to be of a definite period, the first and foremost consideration, before any of the furniture is acquired, is the treatment of the walls. Skillfully covered walls may perform any number of good tricks. They may make a dark room seem lighter; a ceiling seem higher; give width to narrow rooms and make old furniture look charming and homey instead of merely shabby.

There's a wide range of choice. Walls are now treated in many ways, to harmonize with period furniture or exotic whims. And everything is fashionable—paint on plastered walls, wood paneling, rough plaster, paper and fabrics.

When in doubt, flat paint on plastered walls is safest. It is the most neutral of all backgrounds, and is merely an unobtrusive background. All shades and tints are now being used—varieties of green, blue, peach, cream, buff, tan gray. What is most suitable depends on whether the room is large or small, light or otherwise. The bright tints—yellow, peach, cream will endow a sunless room with light. The blue and green shades are suitable only for rooms flooded with light, and the particular shade must first be tested carefully. The wrong green or blue may make the room seem chilly and repelling.

Flat paint or rough plaster walls harmonize with Spanish, Italian and English as well as Colonial furnishings. A particularly striking wall treatment dominated a beautiful room in the home of an American newly returned from Spain. The walls were of rough plaster tinted peach color, broken into several places by small niches to contain a vase of flowers or a small statue, and the niches were colored a deep sapphire blue. It happened to be a very bright living room, and looked equally beautiful by day as when lighted at night.

Wood paneling—either oak natural or stained, or pine or walnut makes a beautiful wall covering for Colonial or English furniture. This is probably the most expensive of wall coverings. However, such a room needs very little in the way of furnishing. At a recent exhibition a Colonial living room of small size, paneled in natural oak was furnished with only three or four pieces—chairs and table and a few prints on the wall. Yet it was complete and comfortable. Paper is now being revived as a

Pneumonia Is Fatal After Fall In Park

Cleveland, Oct. 9.—Pneumonia contracted from lying for more than 24 hours at the foot of an embankment in Ambler park here, was held responsible today for the death of William Gallagher, 60, retired theatre manager.

Gallagher had been missing from his home since Sunday. He was in a semi-conscious condition when found. He died several hours later. Relatives said Gallagher had suffered frequent lapses of memory since the death of his brother and sister recently in Minneapolis.

A writer suggests 13 ways for a wife to lose her husband, but she might succeed, we suspect, without having to avail herself of all of them.

Have You An Acid Stomach

Candles are both light and decoration. And always in good taste for the dinner or the tea table.

They provide just adequate lighting—not too much. A certain subdued, mellow light is absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of late afternoon tea. Twilight by itself may be depressing as well as, romantic, and the glare of electric lamps is too sudden. But candles bridge the gap gracefully, and a few set in brass candlesticks on mantel or tea tables shed just the proper rays.

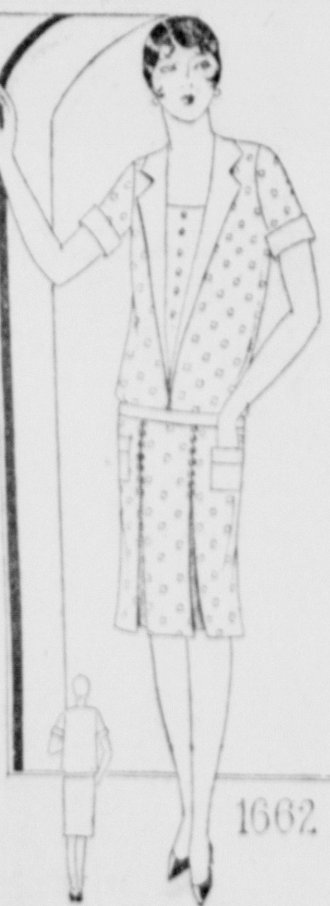

For the dinner table, too, they have several advantages. They are excellent in their decorative effect. Silver candlesticks, sparkling Venetian glass or crystal, or some of the new ceramic designs add beauty to the table. And nothing is so flattering as candlelight. It blurs the background pleasantly and yet adds glamour to the gathering around a table. There is something warm and intimate about candles that draws people together, makes conversation easier than when a group of comparative strangers try to manufacture bright talk under the piercing glare of electric bulbs. (I've just disputed this point with a country visitor who hasn't the convenience of electricity. And how she despises candles and old lamps! Her idea of complete comfort and beauty is electric sockets at arm's reach everywhere! And if it is required for needed power or reading light, I'm in complete accord.)

Incidentally, it's a good plan to keep candles in the refrigerator for at least a day before using. When thoroughly chilled the candles burn slowly, about an inch an hour.

MCDONALD WILL LEAVE CAPITAL

New York, Philadelphia,
Canada Awaiting
Premier's Visit

Washington, Oct. 9.—This was Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's last day in the capital before he departs for Philadelphia, New York and Canada.

Although his peace mission was virtually concluded as far as official negotiations were concerned, there were two final conferences with President Hoover on the day's schedule.

The British premier was to meet the president in the morning to "mop up" the discussions concerning Anglo-American amity. It was considered likely that the president and the prime minister would exchange final views on such subjects as war debts, naval bases and violations of the prohibition law at sea.

As far as the coming disarmament conference in London is concerned, it was understood that the two statesmen had reached a complete accord.

The last meeting of the president and the prime minister in the evening was to be of a sentimental nature in which the chief executive was to bid the visiting Labor premier a cordial farewell.

With the official publishing of the text of the disarmament invitations, the peace task of the prime minister was interpreted as having ended. From now on his sojourn in the country will be more social than diplomatic.

The prime minister and his daughter, Isabel, slept an hour later than usual following a day of intensive entertainment climaxed by a brilliant diplomatic dinner given by Sir Eme Howard, ambassador from Great Britain, at the British embassy.

STYLE EDICTS

Paris, Oct. 9.—Satin seems the sure road to success for every smart woman choosing her clothes for this winter. And this means satins that are stiffer and shinier than the soft heavy varieties used last season.

They mould the figure in a firm manner and still fall in delightful soft folds, reflecting the light in more ways than one.

Most popular in satin are the curious off-white shades which remind one of the array of samples of face-powder found on the beauty specialist's counter: natural, peach, natchel, ochre, sun-tan and soft shell-pink. They seem to need no added ornament other than the material, the colors deepening in the folds of the drapery and producing a charming play of light and color.

A leading house uses this new satin so that it makes sculptural folds and develops the long lines into boxes just where the accent is needed. The satin evening gowns are often Greek in feeling, with a characteristic bow at the back of the décolletage, or possibly one at the back of the right shoulder and another at the front of the left hip.

Another dressmaker is featuring a flowing flare in his frocks of plain satin, many of them showing a hip yoke, very deep in front and shorter at the center-back, a flared flourish of tiers of flouncing being set on this yoke so that the greatest amount of fullness occurs at the back.

Newly printed satins, a pin-dot satin, a delicated one, a semi-stiff variety are all novelties which have made their mark in the fashions this winter.

Paris, Oct. 9.—If feet are cold this winter, heads certainly will not be. For fur is found in frequent combinations with felt for many of the new hats and even making entire head covering.

The fur that is used is of course as supple and soft as any fabric and drapes as deftly as the finest veil. One milliner is showing a charming model of black broadtail, with a band of white ermine across the face and confining up the left side to trim the back. A grey toque has a fold of felt draped across the top of the close-fitting shaved lamb crown and a narrow band of the felt also frames the face.

A leading house is putting a charming little fur toque with practically every fur coat or fur-collared one.

So far, the off-the-face models seem to predominate, many of them turned cuff-like off the forehead and folded down again over the right cheek. One in black hatter's plush has the cuff of black felt and another in black felt is folded over a head-band of grosgrain ribbon descending in long wings at the side.

A black felt has the brim entirely lined with panne velvet cut and folded away from the back of the neck and flattened against the forehead, while incrustations of the same trim the back of the hat placed low on the crown.

Feathers trim a number of the new models for winter, largely brush feathers or aigrettes. A charming model in black tulle has tiny plaques of red and yellow feathers caught under the brim and flattened against the neck at the back.

A new lure for game fish is a highly colored rubber ball that is placed so close to the hooks that it protects them from weeds.

Woonsocket Faces
Financial Struggle

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 9.—With its treasury virtually stripped of its last cent, this city is struggling to remain on its feet and come through the present financial crisis with flying colors.

Income tax returns, due this November from its forty thousand inhabitants, it is hoped will relieve the city of its embarrassing situation.

During the past year, however, bankers point out, Woonsocket has borrowed $1,700,000 from Boston banks in anticipation of taxes. With this fact in view and the fact that the city cannot hope to collect more than $2,000,000 in taxes, bank officials are loath to loan more money to replenish the nearly depleted city treasury.

The notes on the present loan are due this Fall, by necessity, after the income tax returns.

All large appropriations for improvements or constructions for the city have been and will be vetoed by Mayor Paquin, so he has decided.

"It is apparent," said City Solicitor Ovila Lambert, "that the city must do a right about face in the matter of spending money. Woonsocket must live within its income."

MOVIES

"THE HOME TOWNERS"
Beware of over concern about the other fellow's affairs!
This is the conclusion to be drawn from "The Home Towners," the new all-star production which is based on George M. Cohan's stage play of the same name and is shown at the Royal.

For one of its characters a well-meaning, know-it-all, goes to New York to act as best man at his closest friend's wedding, and as a result of his unjustified suspicion of everything and everyone, almost brings tragedy into the lives of a number of people.

This conscientious meddler is told a few pungent truths by another character in the play, and the words produce a surprising effect.
Every village has a Marthy Perkins, who "feels it to be her burden duty" to let everybody know everything that everybody has said about anybody and everybody. There are those who believe their interference to be really with a quite holy motive, and with no malevolence whatever. Whatever their motive is, the results are the same. They are a sort of social plague, and many a friendship and many a family has been broken up because of these glibby busybodies.

The all star cast engaged for this remarkable production includes Richard Bennett, Doris Kenyon, Robert McWade, Robert Edeson, Gladys Brockwell, John Miljan, Vera Lewis, Stanley Taylor, James T. Mack and Patricia Caron.

"RIVER OF ROMANCE"
Charles (Buddy) Rogers plays dual characterizations in his latest all-talking Paramount picture, "River of Romance," which is at the State.

He is seen first as the soft spoken youth who returns to his homeland in the South after having spent most of his life in the East. Later in the picture he becomes the "notorious Col. Blake," blustering gambler, and river-front badman of the Mississippi.

Subsequent events show that his "badness" is, in reality, feigned and that he is not the terror that all his acquaintances had supposed him to be.

"River of Romance" is a costume play adapted from the famous play "Magnolia" by Booth Tarkington. The theme of the action is the rise to fame of Rogers following an incident in which he seems to be a coward. The scenes are laid in the lower Mississippi valley, on a plantation, on the river boats and in a gambling hall. The time is the 1840's.

The picture has all the romantic flavor of a mint julep. It is distinguished for its beautiful sets, costumes and photography. Buddy never looked more handsome than he does in the stately dress of the 40's.

See Cancer Cure For Near Future

Paris, Oct. 9.—A cure for cancer is coming soon, according to Dr. Albert Solland, well known radiologist and director of the Solland Clinic of Los Angeles, who is conferring with prominent doctors in Paris.
Dr. Solland says that cancer is the only disease in the world which has completely baffled the great scientists and doctors, but that the day is imminent when the curability would be greatly increased.

"The greatest difficulty," adds Dr. Solland, "is in dealing with cases which have reached a generalized condition. For some strange psychological reason, a victim of cancer will often refuse to admit, even to himself, what his condition is. He is so terrified by the first symptoms that nothing will induce him to see a doctor and thus the disease is not caught in its first stages, when there is little danger."

Heredity certainly plays a large part in propagation of the disease. Day by day there are new discoveries as to the root of the evil.

Undertakers Will Name Executive

New York, Oct. 9.—Baseball has its Judge Landis. The Movies—Will Hays and the undertakers are plotting the naming of a grand mogul for their profession. But hotel men today have joined the ranks of industries which have organized for protection and placed a leader, with broad powers and authority at their head.

Thomas D. Green, president of the American Hotel Association of the United States and Canada, will become executive director of the organization and his word will be final in the direction of the industry.

More than $5,000,000,000 is invested in the hotel properties over which Czar Green will exercise his power. His desire to "bring the Association to the forefront of the great trade associations of the country," led him to accept the post, Green said. Closer cooperation and exchange of ideas will bring about improved service to the public by hotels generally, he believes.

No Limit to Speed

Dr. J. R. Poppen, flight surgeon of the U. S. Navy, who says there is no limit to human speed in so far as man's physical make-up is concerned. He says the human body can go as fast as mechanical means can be made to take it, barring sudden changes of rate of speed or of direction. Dr. Poppen is working out a training technique which includes inspiring control of specific sets of muscles involved in "biological compensation" to speed.

EHMKE HURLS ATHLETICS TO FIRST SERIES VICTORY OVER CUBS

Veteran Slabster Fans 13 Chicago Hitters To Break Strikeout Mark

By DAVIS J. WALSH
Chicago, Oct. 9. — It may have been the morning after yesterday, to some people, but Chicago, rallying overnight from the disturbing defeat of its Cubs in the first game of the world series, saw it only as the morning before this afternoon. This, in other words, was to be another day, bringing with it another game between the Cubs and the Philadelphia Athletics, and the town was ready to forget the mistakes of the past in its hope of the immediate future.

It consumed a lot of poison yesterday while the Athletics were getting home with what might be termed a No. 5 iron in the person of Howard Ehmke but today it was clear and its heart was whole again. In brief, Chicago had only a mild hangover to show for its distressing debacle.

That was how the town figured it, anyhow. There were six games yet to be held and most of the loyal citizens felt that the series would have to be played on a basis of seven-or-no-count.

In consequence, the same thousands who watched the gates stay closed on Monday night were back again for more watching last night and there wasn't a single kick-back reported from the 35,000 odd who held reserved seats. Another capacity crowd of 51,000, therefore, will be back in there very resolutely and ruggedly when they ring the bell for the second game of the great series at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, provided the man in charge of the weather does right by little Nellie. At last reports, he was speaking in a very threatening manner about showers late today.

Anyhow, game or no game, the smart money granted Chicago its right to be loyally optimistic and then proceeded to lay itself down on what it deemed to be the prospective winner. There was no doubt that the Athletics enjoyed both a practical and tactical advantage as a result of Connie Mack's master strategy in the first game and today you could get 8 to 5 for your money if you still liked the Cubs. Some of the more sanguine souls, in fact, were of the opinion that everybody would be out of the trenches and into the bath by Saturday night and there was a story that was not without logic.

New Strikeout Record
Ehmke, the No. 5 pitcher on the ball club, had paid off on one of the greatest gambles ever taken by a baseball manager. Thirteen Cubs were fanned—Hornsby, Wilson and Cuyler twice each—for a world series record and the Cubs never would have scored at all except for Dykes' wild throw in the ninth inning. Grove wasn't seen except as a warm up pitcher. Earnshaw didn't even appear above the level of the dug-out. The Athletics, in effect, had won the ball game without disclosing the real strength of their hand. Having done that much, perhaps the astute Mr. Mack will pitch Ira Thomas in the second game today. I am aware that Ira Thomas no longer is even a good catcher but, as long as guile is being practiced in a big way around here, it mightn't be a bad idea to find out just how far one can go in that direction.

Ehmke, for example, wasn't even an authorized pitcher with the ball club in mid-season. He virtually had been read out of the ranks back in early August and, of all the men with the outfit, only two knew that he was to pitch yesterday. They were Connie Mack and Ehmke himself and the amazing thing about it is that they knew it three weeks in advance and didn't trouble to advise the rest of the help.

The long shot came home, anyhow, and today some of the sharpshooters were inclined to believe that Connie will play another. They say he is fixing to take a flier with Jack Quinn, forty-four-year-old and seemingly as passe as Ehmke was presumed to be before yesterday's exhibition. If Quinn starts and finishes this game, the Athletics will leave for Philadelphia tonight with their big three—Earnshaw, Grove and Walberg—still waiting for a chance to pitch in their own world series. If Quinn doesn't finish, or in any case, doesn't win, there still will be a world series.

Earnshaw Today
However, it generally was believed that Connie would quit gambling in his old age and start playing for safety; that, in other words, he would come back with Earnshaw today and with Grove in Philadelphia on Friday. This at least would convince the Cubs that they weren't being kidded by somebody.

At that, the best pitching that Connie can muster might go wrong this afternoon, for the Cubs were ready with Pat Malone and Patrick was a fine broth of a lad in the National League averages. And if he pitches as well as Root did yesterday, it will take another Ehmke to beat him.

The Cubs, of course, must win today or begin to figure just what a man can do with the losers' share of the receipts. They must win, too, for the sake of the good old National League. Counting yesterday's defeat and the eight straight the Yankees reeled off in the last two years, no National League team has won a world series game since 1926. If they keep that up much longer, they will have to demand a bique, which is not something you drink, but something you get when the other guy is too good for you.

SLAMS SERIES HOMER

JIMMY FOXX, youthfu; Philadelphia first baseman started the Athletics off toward their 3-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs yesterday by hitting the first home-run of the 1929 world series.

Ehmke Had To Beg For Just One Shot At Cubs In Series

Chicago, Oct. 9. — Not so long ago Howard Ehmke, who stood the Cubs on their top-pieces yesterday, wasn't good enough for the 15 other clubs in the American and National leagues.

The story goes that Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy, known as Connie Mack, decided that there wasn't another good shake left in Ehmke's arm. And being a business man he tapped the interest of those 15 other teams in this guy who casts the baseball at the hitter in a low-down manner.

The reply, as the story goes, came back from Judge Landis' office that Howard wasn't wanted.

"Every team in both leagues has waived on you," Mack told the long, gangling chucker. "There is nothing for me to do but let you go."

And then Howard Ehmke, the same who made several varieties of waving geraniums out of the esteemed Cubs at Mr. Wrigley's plant broke down and wept.

"Mr. McGillicuddy," he said, "give me a chance to finish out the season and get into the world series. I want to pitch one game against the Cubs and

HOWARD EHMKE, 35-year-old Philadelphia hurler started Cornelius McGillicuddy's American league champions off towards the world baseball title by pitching a 3-1 win over the Chicago Cubs in the series opener Tuesday. Ehmke in his first world series contest fanned 13 opposing batsmen.

Salem High First To Install System For Night Sport In Ohio

Salem High will meet Warren High gridders in the first night high school football game to be played in Ohio at Reilly stadium at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Final negotiations were completed with Warren school officials late Tuesday and the Trumbull county aggregation agreed to transfer the date of the contest from Saturday to Friday. Work on installation of the lights was scheduled to start in earnest today.

Additional seating capacity will be provided at the field by the installation of temporary wooden bleachers. W. J. Springer, principal and athletic director announced last night. Approximately 4,000 spectators will be able to find seats at the field for the game.

First In Ohio
It will be the first after-dark high school grid contest to be played in the Buckeye state. Dayton and Cincinnati colleges have adopted the plan but no eastern cities with the exception of New Castle have installed lights at athletic fields for night football.

If the feature attraction of Collingwood High of Cleveland here last Saturday failed to attract a record-breaking attendance this week's night fracas, school officials here believe, will certainly crack any mark in history here. Fans are expected to come from all over to see the game and it is believed that everyone of the 4,000 seats will be

DALLAS KELLER GIVES TIPS TO AUTO DRIVERS

Five Aids To Motorists Listed By Head Of Keller Auto Co.

Here are some driving tips for motorists given by Dallas Keller of the Keller Auto company, dealers in Oakland and Pontiacs.

When you suddenly find yourself rushing to a bad hole in the road, don't jam on your brakes—unless you have time to reduce your speed and release the brakes before you hit the hole. If you take it at high speed with the brakes on, the result may be a broken spring.

Many drivers who want to get the last mile out of old tires put them on the front wheels because they get less wear there, but this is not wise because the blow-out of a front tire is much more dangerous than the sudden collapse of a rear one. The handle that comes with the jack in your new car is likely to be pretty short. This makes it difficult to use the jack, especially under the rear axle. You'll save a lot of labor and trouble if you provide yourself with a longer handle.

When you haven't enough air in your tires, your car rolls more on the road. This puts an increased burden on your engine, which means more gas and less efficiency for every mile you cover. Many slow leaks are due to a loose hexagon nut at the base of the valve stem. Be sure to tighten this nut before putting a tube in a casing. And be sure the valve cores have not worn out. It pays to replace them occasionally.

England Has Many Small Golf Links

London, Oct. 9.—England is now everywhere dotted with "miniature" golf courses and putting greens. Every little open space not being used for any other purpose is being devoted to practice at golf.

The putting greens, which now adorn even the Houses of Parliament and the Victoria Embankment, are as attractive as they are popular. No attempt is made to make them too easy. The actual holes mainly nestle on the top of little hillocks and miniature bunkers abound. Some of these courses are so tricky that even a Hagen or a Duncan might be beaten by a local fan who knows every inch of the course, at the first attempt.

The charge for the 18 holes is six cents and in London itself there is generally a queue waiting to play. "Miniature" courses are laid out in the parks, some of them in most beautiful surroundings. As a rule they consist of nine holes, ranging from 50 to 110 yards, and requiring just a masher shot and putt. But the holes are most cleverly trapped and the courses are laid out with a skill and ingenuity that might be envied by a first rate golf architect.

The charge for a round, including the hire of two clubs, is 12 cents. Two classes of players are mainly attracted. One is the complete novice who wants to learn something about golf. The other is the good player who wants to take advantage of an admirable opportunity to improve his short game.

Industrial Developments Alter World's Vocabulary

Advent Of Three New Chryslers Add Many Words To Industry's Dictionary; World War, Aviation, Radio Also Force Change

Among the writings of the philosopher Diogenes who lived some 2300 years ago was the statement: things are not made for the sake of words but words are made for things.

This is as true today as in the time of Diogenes. In the process of life new movements bring into being these phrases that best describe them. When a new thing comes into being it demands a label, a name a word.

From the World War phrase and words hitherto unknown or with unfamiliar meanings expressed the experiences of the men in the trenches as no other words could have done. Taken up by everyone such words as "dud," "Barrage," "Big Bertha," "lying pig," "zero hour," "White bang" and even "coddles" became as familiar to the man in the street as words people had used all their lives.

What Aviation Added.

The vocabulary of the air, also to a great extent a legacy from the war, has given to modern definition its "fuselage," "tailfin," "tail fin," "hangar," "airdrome," "jet-slick," and with the advent of the radio added to the dictionary were "static," "aerial," "broadcast," "cliff," "tune in," "antenna," "heterodyne" and others.

So in industry with each development there comes the necessity of new words to tell about it.

Not long ago, in the recent announcement of three new lines of automobiles—the "77," the "70" and the "66"—Chrysler had to create a language all its own to describe the innovations brought to the mechanical world. Such phrases as "multi-range gear shift," "down-draft carburetion," "architectonic body," "synchronized power," "pennant louvers," "chromium architectural," "paraflex spring suspension," and "scissors-type parking lights" are examples of phrases that appear in the vocabulary of the automobile world for the first time.

The "multi-range gear shift," for instance, as the name implies, is a gear shift with many ranges. The "down-draft carburetor," accelerating and speed ranges, and the unusual flexibility and scope of power range it affords.

New Principle Applied

Applying a new principle in fuelization "down draft carburetor" takes its name from the fact that the gas is drawn down into the carburetor, added by the force of gravity, rather than sucked up, as in the old style method. The word architectonic comes from the dictionary to describe a structure that is the essence of master craftsmanship and the "architrave" from architectural phraseology, means moulding around the windows.

"Synchronized power" tells the story of the new Chrysler power plant, engineered as a single unit, not a group of connected parts but one smoothly operating, carefully synchronized whole. "Pennant louvers," the banner or pennant shaped vents in the hood of the "77" and the "70" are named for their shape, and have been designed to conform to the modernistic motif expressed elsewhere in the car. In the "paraflex spring suspension," springs are mounted parallel to the wheels to eliminate sideways, absorb torsional strains, and stresses and control rebounds by checking the impulses and shocks. The parking lights are called "scissors type" because of their similarity to a scissor, a bracket candlestick attached to a wall.

And so it has been throughout the history of the industry. As new advancements came, they were given new words and the words have become a part of the language. The balloon tire, the chassis, the spark plug, the wind shield and hundreds of others came into general use since the automobile, and many others will follow.

Use Of Ice Held A Necessity By Citizens Ice Plant Head

When fall brings Indian summer and cold rains, warm day and raw, the prudent housewife will not be tricked into ice abandonment, according to W. W. Talerton of the Citizens Ice and Coal company.

"What would you think of the housewife who only occasionally cooked her foods, or heated her house or washed her dishes in water that she might save a whiff of gas a scuffle of coal and a few pails of water?" Mr. Talerton asks. "Certainly you would admit that such 'saving' was poor economy."

"Yet to save the price of ice, there are still many well-meaning housewives who refrigerate their foods only once in a while. Penny wise, pound foolish," warning far more than they save.

Ice A Necessity

"For less than the price of a good cigar a day, the average family can enjoy the benefits of ice all the live long year. The most conscientious and thrifty housewife has every justification for taking ice the year around, because, unlike so many other comforts, ice is a daily necessity."

"Milk and cream need the constant protection of ice from the time they arrive until they are consumed. Prunes should be chilled for breakfast. Sweet, firm, fresh butter and tender salads help to rejuvenate the tired business man. But these delectable culinary accomplishments are impossible if reliance is placed in changeable autumn days and nights without ice."

Tried It As A Last Resort Entirely Well

"I have used Tan-a-wa on the recommendation of a friend, for chronic bowel trouble. My bowels were so bad that it was either relief from Tan-a-wa as a last resort, or face an operation."

"After using your Tan-a-wa for three months my bowel trouble has entirely disappeared, and I am again in good health."

"I have told five people who were down in bad shape, with bowel trouble, of my experience with Tan-a-wa, and in every case it has brought them out, showing improvement from the start."

"I told my family physician about what Tan-a-wa had done for me. He was very familiar with my case and so impressed him that he tried it on a patient he had been treating for some time for chronic bowel trouble. A few days later his patient came in to the office and said, 'Doctor, that Tan-a-wa you gave me is doing the trick. I am all right already.'"

"Humanity needs this wonderful medicine brought to their notice, for treatment of this dreaded trouble."

Trains Collide

Athens, O., Oct. 9.—Two freight trains, running in an early morning fog, collided head-on at Chancey, near here, today and one man was injured. Both locomotives were considerably damaged.

"They work while you sleep"

Do you have days when you feel sluggish—when everything seems an effort—and you have no appetite? Take a candy Cascaret before you go to bed! This gentle, harmless aid to the bowels is often all that is needed to clear up a sick headache and cause any other symptom of sluggishness to vanish.

Cascarets can't harm you for cascara is a favored laxative with medical authorities. It does a perfect job of cleansing without violence and without forming the laxative habit. Cascarets are pleasant to take, for they are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice—children love them.

A candy Cascaret or two will usually clear up a bilious, constipated condition between night and morning. Their action is so gentle there is no discomfort from them or danger in their frequent use. They are a pure vegetable product. They do not weaken the system. In fact, the cascara actually strengthens bowel muscles. Remember this when you have a coated tongue, bad breath, when the head feels dull or there is any sign of poor elimination.

If you should lift the body of every car in Buick's field—and compare the chassis—then you too would choose

The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers—front and rear. Combining to check both bound and rebound, and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere. And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of toughest steel... the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure greatest long life... the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

Buick's great new Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower in the 124- and 132-inch models, and 80½ horsepower in the 118-inch models. Unapproached in sturdiness, all-round performance—ability, reliability and economy as well.

Buick's new Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes—providing smooth, positive, silent braking, with minimum pedal pressure. And—because fully protected against dust, dirt and water—operating at maximum efficiency in any weather.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear and new Road Shock Eliminator—twin advancements introduced by Buick. The Buick wheel offering effortless control throughout its entire turning range—and the new Road Shock Eliminator assuring complete freedom from annoying jolts and jars.

Buick's new, longer rear springs, and new

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering... and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory... what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!
